A photograph showing a group of approximately ten women from a rural community. They are all dressed in vibrant, patterned clothing, likely traditional African prints, in various colors such as yellow, purple, green, and blue. The women are standing in a line, facing the camera, though some are looking slightly away. They are wearing headwrap-like accessories and some have small children with them. The background consists of tall, thin trees, suggesting a savanna or forest edge environment. The overall scene conveys a sense of community and tradition.
